FRANKFORT CAR SERVICE STILL STRIKE BOUND

Frankfort, May 7.—This town is still without interurban service as a result of the strike which has tied up the Joliet & Eastern Traction Line. A conflicting maze of rumors are in circulation as to the outcome of the situation, some rumors even going to the length of saying that the line may be abandoned, but nothing of an authoritative nature has been forthcoming so far. The village board has taken up the matter in a minor way. If the interurban line does not resume service within a reasonable length of time, the board proposes to notify the traction officials that unless they do resume the service agreed upon at the time the village granted the line a franchise, then said franchise will be revoked and the company obliged to remove their tracks from the village streets. In case anything of this nature should occur then it is said trucks will be used to haul the mail and from Joliet. In such event the truck drivers would be required to give bonds. In addition to this an effort will be made to induce the M. C. railroad to put on a suburban service. As long as the summer and early fall weather conditions are good the transportation problem can be solved by the use of autos, but with the advent of bad weather and bad roads such transportation would be out of the question.

At present the Rock Island railroad is getting a good share of the Frankfort passenger traffic for Chicago and Joliet, the Frankfort people going to Mokena to take the trains. The trip to Mokena is made by auto or horse or buggy.

One car is being run in the morning only to carry mail and milk. So Frankfort has only one mail a day. This poor mail service makes it very inconvenient for the business men and the banks.

PLANTING OF FIELD CORN IN VILLAGE IS STOPPED

The village board at their monthly meeting last Monday night passed a new ordinance which prohibits the planting of field corn in the village within 100 feet of any private residence. The object of this ordinance is to do away with unsightly fields of corn in front or alongside of town residences from which the view and air is cut off by the tall corn. The new ordinance does not prohibit the planting of sweet or pop corn.

LINCOLN HIGHWAY IN BAD SHAPE

The Lincoln Highway west of here all the way to New Lenox is in a most deplorable condition. The heavy truck and auto traffic has worn great holes in this highway until it resembles a wash board in its way lines. Chuck holes are from 4 to 6 inches deep and in some cases even deeper. The bad shape of the road makes travel over same rough and hard on cars. It is hoped that the proper road authorities will take up the matter and see that such an important highway as this is put in good shape. It is a public disgrace to allow the highway to remain in this condition.

The earth road alongside of the hard road is being used a great deal by the traveling public to avoid the rough hard road and as a result of this continued travel the earth road is also getting full of chuck holes and will soon be as bad as the hard road.

BALL TEAM TO PLAY SUNDAY

The Frankfort Base Ball team will play the first game of the season on Sunday, the weather permitting. This will be practice game but the management hopes to be able to announce a regular game by next Sunday following. The past week the business people of Frankfort have clubbed together and donated enough money so the boys will be able to buy new suits and other needed equipment.

BROTHERHOOD HAS INTERESTING MEETING TUES. EVE.

The Brotherhood of the St. Peter's German Evangelical church had a very interesting meeting Tuesday evening. The Rev. Mr. St. John gave a very good talk on "Mourning and the church which was greatly enjoyed by all present. Following the meeting a banquet was served. A large number of the members of the St. John Brotherhood of Mokena attended this meeting.

FORMER TINLEY PARK MAN HAS GONE TO EUROPE

Tinley Park, May 7.—Word has reached Tinley Park thru the Kensington Turn Verein that Peter Schwab well known former Tinley Park resident is now located in Hungary. It is understood that he has purchased property there.

Ernest Rice mail carrier on route three out of the Tinley Park postoffice has been on the sick list the past week.

The farmers in this section are sowing oats while the sun shines. All available time is being crowded into field work. Some fields are still quite wet and hard to work.

The Orland Dramatic Club will stage a farce comedy in two acts entitled "Pa's New Housekeeper" at the Saenger hall Tinley Park on the evening of May 19th at 8:15. This is a very laughable play and is of two full hours duration and is certain to bring down the house as it has done. Everybody come. Bring your friends.

The vote recount demanded of the late town election is still hanging fire and it is not known just how soon the recount will be ordered.

Henry F. Bruggemann, local grain dealer has taken over the lease of the Rock Island elevator at New Lenox. He has placed H. A. Fink of Frankfort in charge as manager.

Henry Stricker has commenced building operations on a new bungalow.

The Women's Community club of Oak Forest is going to direct a hard time dance at the Saenger hall on Saturday night, May 15th. Prizes will be awarded.

George Lorenz is planning to give a Pentecost dance at the Saenger hall on May 22nd.

Miss Margaret Hopkins and Gery Lux, the latter of Chicago Heights won first prize as the best dancers at the Strike May 7 Dance given by a Blue Island club last Saturday night.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Zion Lutheran church have voted to have a new stamped steel ceiling placed in the church. It is estimated that the new improvement will cost about $600.00.

The Linden Lake in the local Linden Garden is going to be some swell place from present indications. Wild ducks are going to abound in great numbers. George Lorenz, the genial proprietor of the Linden Garden has received a duck and a drake from Wm. Nielsen of Des Moines, Iowa. It is understood that some more ducks will be added soon.

George Schreiber has just received a letter from relatives in Germany saying that they received a package of food stuffs on April 9th which Mr. Schreiber has sent from here last October. Everything was in good condition.

Red Hick who has been ill is able to be around again.

Mother's Day will be observed at the German Methodist church this Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Ladwig will preach a special sermon in keeping with the day. The service will be in the morning at the usual hour of worship.

WILL OPEN MAY 15TH

The Mokena Men's Club will give their opening moonlight picnic dance on Saturday night, May 15th. These dances will be given every two weeks during the summer months in the Cappel Grove. The Sweet Orchestra of Joliet has been engaged to furnish the music for the season.

In keeping with the upward raise in price of everything in general the dance tickets have been raised to 90 cents with 9 cents war tax. The ladies war tax is to be 9 cents straight. The high cost of music, refreshments, etc., makes it necessary that the dances must also bring in more revenue.

ENTERTAINING CONFERENCE

The St. John German Evangelical church entertained the conference of the Monee district of the Evangelical church on Wednesday and Thursday. About twenty-five delegates and visiting pastors from the surrounding congregations were in attendance. The district president from Danville and a number of pastors gave addresses at the Wednesday evening services. The conference closed Thursday noon.

Mrs. Laura Johnston of Chicago spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sammler.

POPULAR MOKENA COUPLE UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Mokena, May 7.—Miss Cora Cooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cooper of Mokena and Howard Gorham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gorham of Homer, were quietly united in marriage at the home of the bride on Thursday evening. Promptly at the hour of 7 o'clock the bridal couple entered the parlor amid the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march and took their positions beneath an arch of smilax, ferns and wedding bells. The Rev. Mr. Elliott of Gary, Ind., officiating, the ring ceremony being used. There were no attendants. Only the immediate families witnessed the ceremony. Miss Alma Bechstein presided at the piano. The bride was prettily gowned in Georgette crepe over crepe de chine and worn a corsage bouquet of pink sweet peas. The color scheme of the rooms was pink and green. Following the wedding a supper was served, covers being laid for eighteen guests. The dining room was prettily decorated with streamers radiating from Kewpies and then terminating in the chandelier. The dining room was prettily decorated with pink and white streamers and ferns. The bill of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. James Ward of Gary, Indiana, an uncle and aunt of the groom. The bridal couple received many beautiful gifts. Their future home will be on Jerome Ave., Joliet. Both young people are highly esteemed and their many friends wish them much success and happiness. Mr. Gorham is employed at the steel mills as an electric welder.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends and relatives for their kindness and sympathy shown us during our recent bereavement in the death of our beloved daughter, Evelyn.

MR. AND MRS. HOWARD BEAGLE

INFANT DIES OF PNEUMONIA

The six weeks old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Beagle died on Monday morning, May 3rd, after being ill only of pneumonia. Funeral services were a few hours after noon at the home, held Tuesday afternoon at the Methodist church. The Rev. Mr. Herrick of the Methodist church of Hill cemetery, Frankfort, officiated.

Mrs. Howard Beagle has been very ill with pneumonia the past week. She is somewhat improved at present.

CELEBRATE SILVER FOR BODING

About fourteen relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Butler recently to remind them of their silver wedding anniversary. A bountiful supper was served and a very pleasant evening was spent. The honored host and hostess received many pretty gifts of silver.

MOVE HERE FROM MICHIGAN

Mr. and Mrs. George Marti, Jr., of Sawyer, Michigan moved into the Wannemacher cottage next to the Mall lumber yard, Wednesday night. Henry Yunker moved them with his motor truck. Mr. Marti ran a fruit farm while in Michigan.

Dr. G. A. Kerr has moved into his new home in the former Hacker cottage. Harry Mall has moved into the Braun residence vacated by Dr. Kerr.

MRS. HODELL RETURNS

Mrs. Albert Hodell who has been in the St. Joseph hospital, Joliet for almost two months following a critical operation has returned home, arriving Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lehnert brought her home in their car. Mrs. Hodell is getting along as well as can be expected. Her friends hope for an early recovery.

John P. Klose is building a new residence on his farm.

The following new car owners are reported for the week: William Lynk who purchased a Ford, and George George Cooper who also purchased a Ford.

George Cooper has gone to Joliet to carry mail on route 100 out from Joliet.

The G. G. R. Class of St. John's, met at the home of their guardian, Elfrida Kreis, for the May meeting last Sunday.

The girls enjoyed a very good meeting and had a general good time. Waukegan Oswald and Herta Peschera were guests of the class.

Refreshments were served in the study of Rev. Kreis, who was absent. The table was decorated with pink and white streamers, with pink sticks, white peas and candles.

As favors to the class members, since it was a special May meeting. We understand that this class is enjoying the organization of their members, and we hope that other classes will follow.

HONOR BRIDE-TO-BE WITH SURPRISE SHOWER

Members of the former Moke Camp Fire organization surprised Miss Cora Cooper with a miscellaneous shower which was held at Miss Cooper's on Saturday afternoon. Miss Cooper is to be a May bride.

The afternoon was pleasantly spent playing all kinds of games following which the gifts for the bride to be were auctioned off and the buyers presented them to her. Miss Eunice Hacker served as auctioneer and did honor to the job. She secured some high bids for the gifts offered for sale. Kernels of corn were used as a medium of exchange. Memories of the dear old camp fire days were brought back with the singing of the camp fire songs. At the close refreshments were served. The favors were yellow and white and bore verses appropriate to the occasion. The bride-elect received many beautiful gifts.

BOARD MEMBERS TAKE OATH OF OFFICE WED.

The village board met in monthly session Wednesday night. The re-elected officers were sworn in. John Liess was re-appointed village treasurer. The salaries of the officers are to remain the same for the ensuing year as they were before. The well question came in for much discussion and it was planned to get estimates for the drilling of the new well and the new equipment. The new bond issue is to be floated sometime in June or July.

POST NUPTIAL SHOWER

On April 28th a miscellaneous shower was given in honor of Mrs. Paul Blumhagen of Chicago at the home of Mrs. J. Butler. The out of town guests were: Mrs. Ralph Burlingame and children of Denver, Colo., Miss Sophia Wessels of Norwood Park, Mrs. Edward Richter and Miss Helen Straube of Chicago, Mrs. George Woodcock of Elwood, Mrs. Hubert Corp. Mrs. Wm. Weber and children, and Mrs. Albert Schmuhl of New Lenox, Mrs. Ervin Schmuhl and Mrs. Geo. Schroeder of Frankfort, Mrs. Pfleger, Mrs. Shevlin and daughter Miss Florence, Mrs. W. Schmuhl, Mrs. George Barnes, and daughter Evelyn, Mrs. John Mates and Miss Duncan of Mokena. The bride received many beautiful gifts. The guests all enjoyed a jolly good time.

NEW LENOX HAS NEW GRAIN MAN; ELEVATOR OPENS

New Lenox, May 7.—The Rock Island grain elevator which was run by Willis Morris up to the time he went bankrupt has been taken over by H. F. Bruggemann, grain merchant of Tinley Park. He is now ready to buy grain. The Rock Island has a force of carpenters engaged repairing the building. H. A. Fink of Frankfort is to be in charge as local manager. The new management will also handle coal. Several car loads are on the way now.

A meeting was held at the J. C. Urch home last Saturday at which committees were appointed to make arrangements for the annual Memorial day program.

The New Lenox Dance Club will direct their last dance at the Grange hall Saturday night of this week. The dance club management decided that with the opening of the Mokena and Frankfort dance pavilions it would be best to drop the local dances for the summer. The New Lenox Club has enjoyed a very successful season and have made their dances very popular with the young folks of this locality as well as Joliet. The dances have always been conducted in a clean manner and no trouble was encountered. The management plans for a still better season next fall and winter. The boys have made enough money to pay for the new dance floor they had laid in the hall last fall.

Jake Werner and family have moved into the Urch cottage.

Henry Urch is offering his residence for sale.

New Lenox is not much effected by the suspension of the interurban car service as the Rock Island is giving good suburban service.

Gulls of the Pacific Coast.

Along the Pacific coast there are three common species, the glaucous-winged, the western and the California gulls, which are not found in the East. They are white-headed species, not strikingly different from the herring gull.—A. A. Allen, in American Forestry.

Most Miles Per Dollar

These Firestone words struck us as exactly expressing our ideas of service.

"Most miles per dollar" is a plain statement of fact—whether you apply it to the tires or to our work.

We believe that our business will grow, as your confidence in us grows. In our stock of Firestone tires, tubes and auto accessories, we have chosen carefully, bearing in mind always the standard, most miles per dollar.

Come in and let us prove it.

GREEN GARDEN FARMERS FIRE INSURANCE CO.

TO THE MEMBERS:

At the last meeting of the directors a resolution was adopted to call the attention of the policy holders to the greatly increased cost of building materials and the importance of carrying insurance enough to protect them against unnecessary loss in case of fire.

The materials entering into the construction of houses and barns have increased at least 75 per cent over a year ago. Labor costs have increased accordingly.

Have you given this matter proper thought? It is not cost of insurance that ought to be given the main consideration, but the cost of replacing a building that may be destroyed. The insurance cost may seem high, but you will not think so if you have a fire and have to rebuild.

This Company is willing to do the right thing and what is right. It asks you to examine your policies and do a little figuring. It is not necessary for you to stand an unreasonable loss and you do not have to do so if you have the amount of your policies increased. We will take the risk on a higher valuation on your buildings, if they are worth it, and thus share the loss with you.

No matter how you may figure, we give the cheapest all round rates of any company. For the past two years we have been paying three-fourths of the cash value and give our policy holders more benefits on account of the raise in the rates.

Too many people figure insurance premiums as money lost. But they do not stop to figure what it will mean in the case of a fire. It is time to wake up and protect yourself and do not blame or find fault with the Company because it will not pay more than the policy calls for in case of loss.

Our aim is to treat everybody alike and give them what is coming to them. Now, please consider which is best, to save a little expense, or take a loss.

We especially urge those members who have the old two-thirds of cash value policies to have them increased. Our agents are willing to do their share of the work, if they are notified, or you may notify the Secretary, because we are willing to increase the insurance on your buildings if they are worth it.

Last Night's Dreams

—What They Mean

DID YOU DREAM OF THE DEAD?

DREAMS of the dead are exceedingly common and are generally very vivid; which is ascribed by Ellis to the fact that in such dreams two opposing groups of memories contend in one of which our relatives or friends are alive and in the other dead; and the effort of the dream consciousness to adjust these two groups causes an intensity in the dream emotion experienced. The conflict of these opposing forces is the reason that frequently in our dreams of the dead we are at first perplexed to find our dear ones with us and say to ourselves: "But he (or she) is dead." But the "stream of images which represents them as alive comes from an older and richer source, is the more powerful," so that it overcomes the other and the dream consciousness seeks to adjust the difference by some such thought as that the person dreamed of is not really dead but was only reported to have died. Sometimes the older emotional stream is so much the stronger that we do not experience this perplexity. In all cases where we see our dead in dreams as alive our dream consciousness accepts it as a fact that they are alive.

To the mystics to dream that we see the dead alive is accounted a very favorable omen, especially if they speak to us. If they look reproachfully at us, or demand of us an accounting of some of our acts, it is a sign that we had better hasten to correct our lives and take greater heed to our behavior. In this connection the words of Doctor him to become a telegraph operator, when he first came in contact with the kind of electricity which produces head-end collisions.

After Mr. Edison had learned the Morse alphabet so that he could tell a dash from a semi-colon his inventive genius began to break out faster than a fat boy with the measles. Whenever he wanted something that nobody else had thought of, he would go out and invent it and then cry "Eureka," after having it patented in several different languages. Most of Mr. Edison's patents are still doing business at the old stand.

Mr. Edison gives away a great deal of money without advertising for bids and has helped many a young man to get somewhere on his own power. He rises at 4 a. m. and mingles with fuses, retorts, crucibles, spark plugs and other forms of inanimate life until midnight. He is one of the few Americans who have the cross of the Legion of Honor pinned neatly over the piano. He sleeps with a pencil over his left ear and a tablet under his pillow, thus making it impossible for any meritorious invention to get away.

The electrocution

Radcliffe, the eminent English investigator, are interesting. He says: "You are more or less at liberty to believe that the dead and living may exist together in a world of spirit in which the so-called living are less living than the so-called dead; and that, in fact, the dead may command, as they do in dreams." For a long time materialistic writers, Herbert Spencer among the number, have attributed the belief of primitive man and savages in a spirit world to dreams of the dead. Before 1895 no attempt was made at a scientific analysis of dreams of this type but they are now attracting much attention.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

by Nellie Maxwell

We play at our house and have all sorts of fun. An' there's always a game when the supper is done. An' at our house there's marks on the walls an' the stairs. An' some terrible scratches on some of the chairs. An' ma says that our house is really a fright. But pa says and I say that our house is all right.

Meat Substitutes.

Meat, though wholesome and well liked by the majority of people, is not essential to a well-balanced meal and many housekeepers who are interested in lessening the food bill, substitute some other foods equally or more nourishing and at less cost. Foods to take the place of meat should be rich in protein and fat. Cheese is a staple food with which everyone is familiar and one which may be used in a variety of ways.

In substituting cheese or any food for meat, especial pains should be taken to serve dishes which are well liked by the family.

Cheese Custard.

Spread sufficient slices of bread to supply the family, rather generously with butter. Place in a shallow baking pan and pour over a custard using one egg for each cupful of milk, salt and paprika to taste. Bake covered until the custard is set and serve at once while puffy and light.

Rice Croquettes.

Warm two cupfuls of cooked rice in a double boiler with enough milk to soften it. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter, salt and cayenne to taste, with two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley. Spread the mixture on a plate to cool, then shape. Roll in fine crumbs which are seasoned with salt and pepper, dip in beaten egg and roll in crumbs again. Cook in deep fat a delicate brown. Serve hot with cheese sauce. Add a cupful or less of grated cheese to a white sauce.

Cheese and Celery.

Select short white stalks of celery with deep grooves in them. Mix cream cheese with salt and finely chopped pecans. Fill the grooves with the mixture and chill. Serve cut in small pieces, on lettuce with French dressing.

Age

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IT IS only as we recognize the Minute upon Minute, Hour upon Hour, Day upon Day, philosophy of Time that we are able to enter into the serious lesson that Age has for us all. For Age has no philosophy excepting the philosophy of accomplishment, as it matures. Even as you think, you Age. And yet in Aging you are liable to realize the full meaning of every breath that you Breathe and of every single Effort you make.

In the Sunset is reviewed the glory of the day.

Age is Experience—crystallized. Age is Initiative—worked out. Age is the Dream—come true. Age is the Tree—full grown. Age is the Business Successful—a power in its area. What you are is the sum of your days in Age—Averaged.

In your Success is reflected the product of every one of your hours.

Age is not the mere piling up of years, for many a man is old at thirty, and many a man is young at eighty. For Youth is as elastic as Age, and Age is as elastic as Youth. Let the Experience of Age ever be a teacher to you. Let it Admonish as well as Encourage you.

POULTRY FACTS

BEST FEED FOR LAYING HENS

Composition of Ration Rather Than Method of Feeding Influences Egg Production.

Experiments in the methods of feeding laying hens show that the composition of the ration rather than the method of feeding has the greater influence upon egg production. The tests were made at the Ohio experiment station.

Rations for laying hens should contain from 10 to 12 per cent of meat scrap or a good grade of digested tankage, or their equivalent in skim milk.

The wet mash has some disadvantages, it is found, as it requires some time each day to prepare and give the mash and may cause digestive disturbances in the fowls if too much is fed.

A satisfactory ration consists in feeding a grain mixture of corn, three parts; oats, one part, by weight, and for the dry mash ration, ground corn seven parts, bran 3 parts, meat scrap five parts. About twice as much grain as mash should be consumed.

UPGRADING MONGREL FOWLS

PRESERVING EGGS IN BRINE

Good After Eight Months if Simple Measures Are Taken—Lime Good as Water Glass.

Eggs laid during April and May are of better quality for preserving than are those laid later in the summer. One pound of air slaked lime added to cooled, boiled water is equally as good a preservative for eggs as water glass.

Only clean, fresh eggs with sound shells should be "put down." Use an earthen jar. Stir the lime thoroughly into the water and drop the eggs in as gathered. Some lime settles to the bottom of the jar but does no harm. Two or three inches of the solution should cover the eggs to allow for evaporation. Keep in a cool place, preferably in a cellar.

Eggs preserved by this method may be safely kept for eight months. When ready for use, remove only the eggs that are necessary.

CARE FOR CONFINED CHICKS

Much Greater Attention Needed Along All Lines Than Those Given Free Range.

Growing chicks that are kept closely confined need much greater attention along all lines than those that have range. See that they have plenty of green feeds that have not wilted down to almost the decaying point and that the yards are kept sweet. Culling also is more essential when chicks are closely confined.

DO NOT MAKE GOOD MOTHERS

Best to Use Incubators and Brooders With Leghorns, Minorcas and Similar Breeds.

Leghorns, Minorcas, and similar breeds, while having many qualities to recommend them, do not make satisfactory mothers and the work of hatching and brooding the chicks may be done more satisfactorily with incubators and brooders.

DOESN'T NEED ANY LAXATIVES NOW

Mr. Becker says life is a joy, without constipation or stomach trouble.

"I had catarrh of the stomach and head for three years. My stomach was so bad that every time I ate anything sweet, such as fruit or pastry, the burning hot water would run out of my mouth. I took a laxative every night.

"Since taking Milks Emulsion my bowels move regularly. I have now taken ten bottles and have gained 10½ pounds. All my friends remark how fine I am looking, and it seems a pleasure to live again, without stomach trouble."—Bert Becker, Miami, Ohio.

Physics usually make slaves out of their users, and weaken the bowels instead of correcting them. Stomach trouble in many cases is directly due to constipation.

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose sickness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

Appropriate Treatment.
Reader—Here is a rather tiresome account of an appendicitis case—Chorus—Aw, cut it out!

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Drop Freezezone on a touchy corn, then lift that corn off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic! No humbug! A tiny bottle of Freezezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.—Adv.

Natural Affinity.

"Do they still use the time-honored shell game?" "Yes; they find it attracts the nuts."

To Have a Clear Sweet Skin.

Touch pimples, redness, roughness or itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment, then bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Rinse, dry gently and dust on a little Cuticura Talcum to leave a fascinating fragrance on skin. Everywhere 25c each.—Adv.

Playing Safe.

Mr. Hardface—No, dear I can't kiss you here; it's too tight.

Miss Vanchaser—But you kissed me on this very spot last night under the electric light.

Mr. Hardface—True, but this is daylight and some one might get a snapshot of me with a concealed camera.

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Plenty of Goat Milk in Germany.

The only item of live stock in Germany which increased during the war is—goats! Germany today has 3,000,000 goats, 10 per cent more than in 1914. Goat milk is being very largely used as a completely satisfactory substitute for cows' milk.—Omaha Bee.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

MEN TURNING TO BOLSHEVISM

Something Profoundly Disquieting in the Constant Repetition of Word Which Seems to Convey Such a Sinister Meaning.

Article XII

By FRANK COMERFORD.

I met a young American major just back from the French front. I had known him for many years. Before the United States entered the war he was one of the many impatient at our delay. He believed that it was our duty to join the fight when the ruthless submarine campaign torpedoed the Lusitania, sending to cold, wet graves American women and children. I distinctly remember his face as he read the headlines in the papers telling of the murderous slaughter of Americans on the high seas. Now when he greeted me he startled me with his first words, "The war is over, I'm a bolshevik." I did not know what the word meant, yet it carried to my mind an impression, and while the impression was hazy, it was clear at least in one particular. It sounded like the confession of a crime.

He had always been of a quiet, conservative type. Before the war one would have judged him to be a pacifist; he was even-tempered, mild of manner, and I still think that before August, 1914, he was a pacifist in head and heart. It was only the call of a just cause, the fight for an ideal in which he believed, that had made him a soldier. In this respect he was typical of 90 per cent of his countrymen.

I had spoken to him the day he enlisted, for he was one of those who volunteered, who might have waited for conscription and claimed a just exemption. He was in the beginning of his married life, with two very young children. By profession he was an engineer. Going to war meant leaving a wife and two babies, leaving a job that promised advancement. I recall his enthusiasm, the intensity of his patriotism, his quiet disregard of the danger to himself. I am sure that there was little hate in his morale. He saw a danger to the world. The honor of his country had been offended against. He was an American, one of those upon whom the duty fell, so he went.

He a bolshevik! Why? I was confounded, confused. The only meaning I gave to his remark was that he was an anarchist. The word "bolshevik" sounded red to me. It flared of the torch, photographed disorder, lawlessness—it registered blood, violence, assassination, force, hate, insanity. I wondered how this nine-lettered word had become the vehicle for so many sensations that disturbed peace of mind and sounded alarm.

Where had the word come from and what company had it kept that so fouled its soul? What did it really mean—had it a definite meaning? Was it a bug like the "flu" germ? Had it come among nations to destroy them and to the hearts of men to silence the heavenly message, "Peace, on earth, good will to men." Would it run around the world as a scourge? Was it a postscript to the bloody war lesson, prophesying more anguish and tears than four years' fighting had brought? Would the world, coming out of the war bent, now be broken? Or was it a meaningless myth? Was the word a bogie, a bad joke, a nightmare pressing heavily on a tired, nervous world's head?

Seeking Word's Real Meaning.

Or was the meaning that men had read into the word a lie? Was bolshevism the message of a new Messiah being cried down by the money-changers of our time in the same way their ancestors had silenced the word from the Mount and destroyed the Message Bearer with the lash and the cross?

In every mind was the thought and from every tongue fell the word. Russia had given the world a word. It had enricheled the globe. Everywhere people were speaking the word—it found lodgment in every brain, a living place in every language. Its use had become universal. The old, the young, rich and poor, the learned, the uneducated, the serious, the simple, the toiler, the artist, the poet, and the peddler, the thinker and the thinker, held the thought and spoke the word. Men, women and children spoke the word, read the word, and felt the thought it carried.

To the nine hundred and ninety-nine it was a word of ill-omen, a word of terror and fear. To the one in a thousand it was a word of hope, a light for the feet of a stumbling world, and the nine hundred and ninety-nine said that some of these people called bolsheviks were dreamers of a strange dream, that twisted idealism had made them mad, that the majority of those who profess faith in bolshevism were sick with a strange, social fever, that they were mischief-makers, ne'er-do-wells, criminals, that they sought to burn the world.

I made up my mind that I would learn the real meaning of the word. The dictionary definition threw no light on its meaning. I came to the conclusion that to learn what bolshevism is I might with wisdom adopt the scientific method used by the doctor of medicine in arriving at a diagnosis. The doctor examines and gathers the symptoms, the meaning of the disease. He then determines what diseases might produce these symptoms. By a process of elimination he discards one possibility after another until at last there is but one disease left, one thing that the symptoms can mean.

I discovered at the outset that most of us have the habit of using terms loosely. Seldom do we give time or thought to the exact, real meaning of things. The meaning of bolshevism is too important to the world not to try to understand it. There is a difference between having the acquaintance of a word and knowing; the former is a mere introduction, the latter an intimacy.

Since the war, when the fastidious diner wearily orders his consommé and the waiter brings it a bit tardily or cold, he thinks to himself, or if courageous enough to speak his mind, he calls the cook a bolshevik. He has found a word to express his irritation. It serves his profane feelings and at the same time saves his smug respectability.

See Bolshevism Everywhere.

Once the maid asking for an afternoon off provoked a knowing smile. Her mistress granted the request, charged it up to a possible romance and generally suspected the policeman on the beat. Since the war it is different. The maid is looked upon with suspicion. Her motives are questioned. The request is considered a symptom of the new terrible disease, bolshevism. The mistress thinks to herself: The maid doesn't want to work any more; she is down with the epidemic.

The office boy, working the reliable excuse that his grandmother has died again, to get an afternoon off to go to the ball game, is trying to shirk work, in the opinion of his employer, who formerly, when such an application was made from the same source, chuckled as he granted it, while his memory took him back to his own boyhood days when he used the grandmother yarn to answer the call of the ball field.

Many captains of industry see the symptoms of the new dread in every movement and thought of the workers. The demand for living conditions and decent wages are grudgingly received by minds soured with the thought that it is bolshevism.

The hirers of child labor, looking hatefully at legislation designed to end child slavery, call the leaders of child life conservation bolsheviks. When doctors and public-spirited men and women insist that an irreparable injury is being done the nation in allowing women to work for a period in excess of the hours they are able to work without menacing their motherhood, the profiteers from woman labor cry out: "You are invading the right of private contract; you are mad with bolshevism."

Every Sort of Definition.

The wag with the wit of a barber defined bolshevism as a wild idea surrounded by whiskers. The saloon-keeper, howled over by prohibition, screams "bolshevism." The anti-saloon leaders come back with the answer, "Your 'personal liberty' cry is only a camouflage for bolshevism."

If anyone disagrees with you, don't grant him the right to an opinion, don't reason with him—just call him a bolshevik. The word has become an epithet, a popular invective, a slur, an insult, an outlet for contempt, contumely and hate. Its parenthood influences our definition of it. Most of us see the Russians with the eyes of the caricaturists, who for so many years have portrayed the Russian as the moujik with high boots, disheveled hair, wild whiskers, the face of an assassin, the body of a terrorist in action, the suggestion of a long dagger smeared with hot blood, under his greatcoat.

If a doctor, making an examination of all of the patients in a hospital, discovered they all had certain symptoms in common, such as temperature, weakness and pain, and because of these findings should diagnose the sickness of all of the patients as pneumonia, the doctor would be regarded a lunatic, yet there are men in the world today who are as foolish as such a doctor would be. They call every symptom of unrest, without regard to its history, bolshevism.

Roumania's Oil Wells.

Many of the Roumanian oil wells are not in working order, which is chiefly due to the military measures taken by the allies at the time of the German advance in Roumania. Although Gen. Falkenhayn's experts devoted particular attention to the reconstruction of the dismantled wells, their work was crowned with limited success, and it will take a long period of systematic work to raise the Roumanian oil fields again to their pre-war importance. The Roumanian government is reported to have lately concluded a convention with the Austrian government whereby they are to supply the Austrians with petroleum and other material of primary necessity in exchange for industrial products.

Have Evidence Against Germans.

Evidence of German crimes is furnished by M. Delannoy, librarian of Louvain; Henri Davignon, secretary of the Belgian commission of inquiry; Paul Lambotte, director of the art galleries of Belgium, and M. Lamy, secretary of the French academy. The latter, it was said, has made a most telling indictment of those who were responsible for acts of savagery.

WHERE IS TRINER'S, THERE IS HEALTH

This slogan is correct even under the worst circumstances. Mr. A. F. Fencil, a miner from Galloway, W. Va., wrote us on January 15, 1920: "As to the results of Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine, I recommend it sincerely to the miners in case of constipation, headaches, stomach-ache, etc., caused by the vitiated air of the mine or by the powder-smoke and carbon gases after blasting, when the miner returns too early to his work before the smoke and dust have been sufficiently removed. Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine makes me and my brother more hardened and keeps us in good health, and others to whom I had recommended this remedy report the same results." If Triner's remedy helps under such circumstances, it must be good, and its results in normal conditions must be peerless. Ask your druggist or dealer in medicines also for Triner's Liniment which is excellent for rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains, swellings, etc.—Joseph Triner Company, 1333-43 S. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill.—Adv.

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

High Aspirations.

"You are fond of school, aren't you, dear?" asked a teacher of a pupil who had just finished her first week.

"W'y, Miss Andrews," replied the little tot, "I mean to go to all the schools they is until I get to the highest school, and I mean to study all the histories they is until I study the highest one. I mean to study the history of the angels, even."

A bluff is all right as long as you can fool people with it.

If it weren't for your friends there'd be no fun in anything.

Palestine's Rainfall.

Palestine has a remarkable advantage in putting through engineering projects to store the rainfall, which occurs five months of the year, because the Mediterranean is at a higher level than the main water basins of the country, the River Jordan and the lakes, and therefore little of the total rainfall runs off directly to the sea.

But One Way Is Better.

A bluff, hearty old bachelor friend of the family, trying to get on terms with the son of the house, asked him, "Have you practiced any fancy methods of skating, sonny?" "No," said sonny, "I can skate only two ways as yet." "Ah, and which are they?" "Standing up and sitting down," said sonny.

The Congressional Library.

Under its great gilded dome the Congressional library preserves for public use and reference and for posterity nearly five million items, including 2,710,000 printed books and pamphlets, 165,000 maps, 400,000 etchings, engravings, photographs, etc.; 850,000 pieces of music and hundreds of thousands of manuscripts.

Got Her Pennies.

Mary had attended Sunday school for the first time. Upon returning home she was asked by her mother: "Mary, what did you do at Sunday school today?" To which Mary made the immediate reply: "Oh, nothing much. They took me down in the basement of the church and took my pennies away from me."

Ridiculous Importance.

You cannot hope for anything like contentment so long as you continue to attach that ridiculous degree of importance to the events of this life, which so many people are inclined to do.—Arthur Helps.

Uncivilized People Led.

The Indian mind is called imitative rather than initiative, but in the employment of designs it is stated on authority that every known weave has been first used by uncivilized people.

It is said that 90,000,000 brown handkerchiefs are used annually in the United States.

ALICE JOYCE

Many of the greatest men and women of the stage have had their names associated with one certain play.

Alice Joyce seems destined to have the same distinction. The Vitaphone star has had success after success, but, like all other motion picture stars, she has been without a role that stood out separate and distinct from the rest. In "The Vengeance of Durand," adapted from Rex Beach's powerful story adapted by Mr. and Mrs. George Randolph Chester, she has the best role in her notable career.

Fraternal Friendship.

A curate of a very nervous temperament was constantly making awkward remarks intended as compliments. Having distinguished himself in an unusual degree during a gathering of clergy at the bishop's palace, he was taken to task for his failings by a senior curate who was one of his companions on the way home. "Look here!" said the senior decidedly. "You are a donkey! Why cannot you keep quiet instead of making your asinine remarks? Mind you, I am speaking to you now as a brother!"

Daughter's Comeback.

Mother—"Shame on you, Dorothy! The idea of letting a boy whom you've known only a week, kiss you! Why, when I was your age a girl was considered vulgar who would let a boy even hold her hand until he'd known her several months." Daughter (insouciantly)—"And didn't you say, once, mother that it used to take you two weeks to go from New York to Chicago?"—Yale Record.

One Millionth of an Inch.

Steel gauges accurate to the incredible fineness of a millionth part of an inch are now being made in quantities at the United States bureau of standards. So extraordinarily precise is the method of manufacture, simple as it is, that in one instance 31 finished gauges out of a lot of 53 were absolutely accurate to .000,001 inches, and the balance all within .000,002 inches, of precision, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The gauges are steel disks.

Genuine Polish.

Some people are rusty; their harsh, ungainly manners cut out whatever is good in their own character. Some people are gilt; a very brilliant exterior they present, but the first brush and hard using rubs off the gilding and reveals of bare metal beneath. A third class is polished. The polish indeed is on the multifarious crosses of human life, the more it is rubbed the brighter it grows.

Early Basket Makers.

The ancient islanders of Great Britain were famous basket makers and their wares were costly acquisitions in the palaces of Italy. They manufactured woven boats and covered them with the skins of wild animals; their huts were made of openwork made of osiers and their warriors' shields were constructed of reeds, in a marvelously impervious manner.

Salvadorean Celebrations.

The people of Salvador celebrate March 15 as a holiday in honor of General Morazan, who was elected president in 1830 of the Central American federation. In 1832 he suppressed an insurrection against the federal government in Salvador, in 1838 a revolution in Guatemala and in 1842 in Costa Rica. The people of Salvador also celebrate March 1 as a holiday.

Varied Climes, Varied Habits.

Natives of hot climates who spend much time in the water rarely use soap except for a shave or shampoo. The Esquimaux is a reckless bather during the fishing season, when he is forced to wade to disentangle his nets, but his wife and family think handling wet nets absolves them from further bathing rites.

A Love Story in Japan.

What would the American reader think, having been brought by the author to that place where the hero's voice becomes soft and the heroine blushes and lowers her eyes, to see a row of asterisks indicating a footnote, which says: "At this point he asked her to marry him." That is what the Japanese have done in the love scene in "John Halifax, Gentleman," so that it might accord with their peculiar sense of delicacy.—World Outlook.

Cherry Tree's Home.

Kerasoun in Asia Minor is the home of the cherry tree. When the Roman general Lucullus, after a victorious campaign in Asia Minor, carried home the shoots of a new tree he named it the Kerasoun tree. Later the name was shortened to "Kerass," then to "Cerise" and finally the Anglo-Saxon tongue involved the word "cherry."

These Tires Are a Revelation

The Brunswick is frankly a combination of the best in tire building.

There is one tread that's supreme beyond question. And that is now on Brunswicks.

There is one side-wall construction, which, by every test, holds the summit place for endurance. And that one was adopted for Brunswicks.

Fabrics differ — up to 30 per cent — in their strength tests. On Brunswicks the maximum long-fiber is the standard.

There are certain additions, each one expensive, which add vastly to tire mileage. The Brunswick embodies all these extras.

There are no patents, no secret formulas to prevent any maker from building the best. It is simply a question of knowledge and skill—cost plus care.

Brunswick standards are known the world over. The very name certifies an extraordinary tire. Yet Brunswicks cost no more than like-type tires.

Buy ONE Brunswick. It will prove that a better tire cannot be bought, regardless of price.

ALICE JOYCE

Of all the reigning favorites of the early motion pictures, Alice Joyce alone shines as a star today. With such notable plays as Charles Klein's "The Lion and the Mouse" and "The Third Degree," the famous Drury Lane melodrama, "The Sporting Duchess," Rex Beach's story, "The Vengeance of Durand," and "Slaves of Pride" as her mediums, Miss Joyce has entered an era of steadily increasing popularity. She occupies a place among the rulers of the screen.

HARRY T. MOREY

When not at work on a picture Harry T. Morey is to be found in No. 36 a dressing room which dates back to the early days of his career in the Brooklyn studio of Vitaphone. It was 10 years ago that he occupied this room with Earle Williams. The walls resemble a combination of art museum and rogues' gallery. They are hung with pictures of Morey in various roles, ranging from a policeman, his first part; the crook, Joseph Garson of "Within the Law," to the high financier in "The Gamblers." Recently, he has added Philip Grey in "The Birth of a Soul" and a detective character in "The Flaming Claw."

LARRY SEMON

The Fourth Estate lost one of the cleverest cartoonists in the country when Larry Semon heard the call of the screen. What the newspaper readers lost the motion picture fans gained, for Larry is now the comedy king. He writes and directs all of his features and never imitates another. In "The Grocery Clerk" he introduces the slimming cat.

HARRY T. MOREY

Something like ten years ago, before he became a Vitaphone star, Harry T. Morey was described as a "robust" actor. His fine physique has stood him in good stead in the silent drama. He has been able to play all sorts of roles, and look the part.

JOE RYAN

Joe Ryan won the prize for riding Dynamite, a bucking steer belonging to a wild west show playing in Denver, and on top of that received an offer to go into pictures as a cowboy. Thus filmland secured a new type of bad man. He couldn't help playing a bad man for he was born at the foot of Devil's Tower in Crook County, Wyo. He has lived up to the name of his natal county, playing the vicious but rather likable villain. Joe Ryan is now at work on a serial in which he will appear as both hero and villain.

WILLIAM DUNCAN

Before he was an actor, William Duncan was an athletic instructor and a writer for physical culture magazines. He first appeared on the stage with Sandow, the strong man, and later toured the country at the head of his own dramatic company playing Hamlet. Today he is known throughout the world as a serial star and director. Upon completing "Smashing Barriers" Albert E. Smith, president of Vitaphone, furnished Mr. Duncan with a serial the production of which will cost $1,000,000.

"The Silent Avenger" is the title of the new serial. It was written by Albert E. Smith and Cleveland Moffett. In this Mr. Duncan is given ample opportunity to show his skill as a fancy shot pool player, expert on the tennis court and clever sleight of hand performer. The thrills provide the star-director with material in which to demonstrate his strength and ability as an all-round athlete. He insists on realism and will assume great risks to stage a thrill as it should be performed. He will not use dummies or substitutes. If the thrill is in the script, Mr. Duncan insists that it can be performed and he does it regardless of the hazard.

His leading lady, Edith Johnson, is equally courageous and follows William Duncan to the limit. They have been associated in several serials, including "The Man of Might" and "A Fight for Millions."

CORINNE GRIFFITH

Corinne Griffith is known as the best dressed woman on the screen. Her gowns are designed especially for her productions and quite frequently this favorite of the silver screen sets the style for Dame Fashion. But dress is not the only asset Miss Griffith possesses; her facial expression is in a class by itself. There is not an emotion, shade or degree of feeling that she cannot express with her features. "The Climbers," "The Tower of Jewels," "Human Collateral" and "Deadline at Eleven" give an idea of her versatility. These features also show Miss Griffith in some of her latest gowns.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued

Hilliard's eyes blazed; the audacity of the suggestion was obscured by the possibility of honor that it contained. "Yes!" he said thickly. "Yes! You bet I could!"

"And you wouldn't be afraid to keep on working for me? That is, if we got this Silverbow scheme all laundered clean before we started something else?"

"Not if you—"

"Then listen!" The broker's voice was soft and homiletical. "You've thought some hard things about me. Maybe you had some cause; I'm not disputing that. But I guess you've forgotten something. Something I told you when we first got together. I told you if you got me what I wanted I'd help you get what you want. Well—you've done your best. I got to give you credit. And maybe you've changed some of my ideas too. Maybe you've sort of worked me around to believing I haven't given you a square deal. Well—let the past bury its dead. I've got more than one string to my bow; I'm sort of tired of the old line of stuff; I'm thinking seriously of cutting it all out and going in for the safe and sane. It isn't so juicy, but it's safe. Am I right or am I wrong? All the cards on the table—I'm no fool. Hilliard—and the bottom's falling out of this promotion game. So if you think you can blossom out into a legitimate salesman of high-grade bonds—of course there wouldn't be nearly as much in it for you—I've got more than half a mind to give you the chance. It's a risk, but I guess I owe it to you."

He slid his pudgy hand across the table and smiled pacifically. "I've taken a strong fancy to you, son—let's be respectable together. What do you say to that?"

In his feverish joy Hilliard was willing to ignore the obvious fact that the broker's repentance was considerably overdue, and that it was founded on expediency and not on principle. The thought of working longer for Harmon—even if the securities he had to sell in future were most conservative—filled him with nausea; but if that were the only way to save the situation how could Hilliard decline? How in his duty to himself, could he refuse to work again for Harmon, if this were the only means to save his friends their money already lost? He felt his veins throbbing to his agitation.

"Is . . . is that a bona fide offer?" he faltered. Harmon's hand slapped the table for emphasis.

"Straight as a string. To tell the truth you're sort of on my conscience. You're with me? All right! Then as far as I'm concerned the contract's canceled here and now. Got it with you?"

"No, I—"

The broker's face darkened. "Where is it?"

Hilliard was disinclined to tell how and why he had trusted it to Cullen. "It's safe," he said. He could hardly contain himself; he looked and looked at Harmon, trying faithfully to reconcile the man and his appearance and his principles, and he failed—but here was the great reality confronting him—and the millionth chance had magically come true. It was warped honesty but it was honesty no less.

Harmon licked his lips. "Well, we'll clean up the whole transaction today and start with a new deal. That's settled. Oh, don't carry on like that, Hilliard—Now about this chap, Waring—"

"Oh, you still want to see him, do you?"

Harmon hesitated. "Sure! Give him a little surprise, eh? If he's the man who's been bombarding us we'll spike his guns first—What?" He laughed noisily and Hilliard was almost too excited to dislike the laugh. "Don't bother to telephone the Onondaga; we'll just walk over."

"But I thought you wanted to stay away from there?" Hilliard was displaying many of the symptoms of intoxication.

"Oh, not when everything's going along so smooth and nice! We can go up in your room and have Waring up there and be just as private as anywhere else."

Accordingly, and to the chagrin of a hovering waiter, they quitted their booth and went out to the open air. They reached the Onondaga; they arrived at the mezzanine floor; they were safe in Hilliard's apartment.

"My!" said Harmon jocosely. "I wish I could afford to live like this! But you've got a rich backer, and I haven't." He rubbed his hands in great good nature; his eyes were sparkling and his fat body was a-quiver with vanity. "Well, the first thing to do . . . Where did you say you keep that contract of ours hidden?"

"Is there any hurry about that now?" Hilliard was fairly beside himself with joy.

"Well—" The sudden whirr of the telephone buzzer seemed to ruffle the broker's nerves, for he started violently. "Who's that?"

"Just a moment. . . ." Hilliard took down the receiver. "Yes? . . . Oh, yes, have him . . . no; hold the wire—" He beckoned hilariously to Harmon. "Waring's downstairs now!"

You're ready to see him, aren't you?"

The broker was suddenly plunged into uncertainty.

"Yes—no! No!"

"What's wrong?" Hilliard was visited by an unwelcome chill; he tried to analyze it and couldn't.

The big man was breathing with difficulty. "I . . . you go down and . . . no, that wouldn't do either. . . . I want to see him alone. I want to get him to call off his investigator, so when we begin a new campaign we won't have any verified report against us on the old—"

"No, sir!" Hilliard shook his head smilingly. "I'm the man who's had to stand the gaff so far; I'm going to be in on any conferences. That's my play!"

Harmon licked his lips again and swallowed repeatedly.

"Well . . . it's . . . if you let me do the talking then . . . or . . ."

Hilliard turned back to the transmitter.

"Ask him to come right up," he said. He replaced the instrument and looked alarmedly at the broker. "You're not well?"

"Yes, I am. . . . Now let's get at that contract! There's no sense talking business until that's canceled, is there?"

As Hilliard stared at him an icy wave of suspicion swept him from head to foot.

"What's your hurry? It's my funeral, isn't it?"

"You are anxious, though! Harmon, I—"

"No . . . no hurry at all. Only as long as I'm here . . . and the game's played out . . . as a favor to me . . . let's cancel it. Where is it? I . . . Good God, son, don't you want that thing out of the way? It's no good with an alias on it! I'll put up the money—I—"

A sharp rap on the door stopped him short. Hilliard turned the knob; Waring and Mr. Cullen burst in.

"Why, Mr. Cullen!" he said in astonishment. "They didn't tell me you were here! Hello, Rufus."

"Hilliard!" Cullen's face was red and excited. "Oh, I beg your pardon!" He had seen Harmon.

Hilliard, taken utterly by surprise, began to phrase the introductions; he had only just begun when Harmon interrupted—Harmon with a set jaw and blazing cheeks. He was standing by the writing table, and one hand was resting heavily upon it. His manner was curiously apprehensive, curiously desperate.

"Ah! . . . Mr. Cullen . . . most happy, I'm sure . . . and Mr. Waring . . . delighted!" His voice was stifled in its throatiness. "Gentlemen, I have the honor to be president . . . of the Silverbow Mining corporation . . ."

He paused; his hands weaved aimlessly. "Of Montana . . . Gentlemen. . . . I hear there's been some adverse criticism of our property . . . you're stockholders, I understand . . . not used to criticism . . ."

He flung his head erect. "I offer you personally . . . to relieve you . . . of any and all obligations . . . and pay back penny for penny." Here his knees shook and he swayed appreciably. He was holding himself upright only by tremendous, visible effort.

"The man's sick!" Cullen stepped toward him. Waring and Hilliard were standing fascinated. The broker watched off Cullen with both hands.

"No, I'm not sick! . . . Contract calls for delivery of ninety-nine per cent of capital stock . . . on payment of a hundred and twenty thousand dollars . . . before December . . ."

Harmon hesitated. "Sure! Give him a little surprise, eh? If he's the man who's been bombarding us we'll spike his guns first—What?" He laughed noisily and Hilliard was almost too excited to dislike the laugh. "Don't bother to telephone the Onondaga; we'll just walk over."

"But I thought you wanted to stay away from there?" Hilliard was displaying many of the symptoms of intoxication.

"Oh, not when everything's going along so smooth and nice! We can go up in your room and have Waring up there and be just as private as anywhere else."

Accordingly, and to the chagrin of a hovering waiter, they quitted their booth and went out to the open air. They reached the Onondaga; they arrived at the mezzanine floor; they were safe in Hilliard's apartment.

He rubbed his hands in great good nature; his eyes were sparkling and his fat body was a-quiver with vanity. "Well, the first thing to do . . . Where did you say you keep that contract of ours hidden?"

"Is there any hurry about that now?" Hilliard was fairly beside himself with joy.

"Well—" The sudden whirr of the telephone buzzer seemed to ruffle the broker's nerves, for he started violently. "Who's that?"

"Just a moment. . . ." Hilliard took down the receiver. "Yes? . . . Oh, yes, have him . . . no; hold the wire—" He beckoned hilariously to Harmon. "Waring's downstairs now!"

get me my . . . check-book!" All at once he seemed to collapse; his head hung low, and his breathing became stertorous. His cheeks puffed queerly.

Hilliard sprang to him. "Rufus! Call the office! Get the house doctor!"

Cullen had raced to the bathroom for a glass of water; he raced back again, spilling half of it. Hilliard was chafing the broker's wrists. The three men strained at the unwieldy, unresisting bulk, while leaden fear clutched at their hearts.

The house physician bustled in to find the broker lying on the bed in a profound coma; his reflexes had gone from him; he couldn't be roused. There was no need of a stethoscope.

"Order an ice bag," said the man of medicine sharply. He himself was rattling among his vials for the calomel. Rufus was at the telephone.

"Anything I can do?" asked Hilliard earnestly. His suspicions had crystallized; and he was bitterly aware that the broker had planned not justice, but some new brand of perfidy; nevertheless, the man was unquestionably in danger—and revenge could wait.

"Nothing—just give me plenty of room."

As the three stood watching painfully, Cullen put out his hand to Hilliard, and spoke under his breath.

"Henry—when did he come?"

"Only just now. An hour ago."

"Hadn't he told you? Or hadn't you heard?"

"Heard what?"

Cullen motioned to Waring.

"Give it to him, Rufus . . . Oh, I see; I see—"

The law student, without a word, produced a yellow blank and thrust it at Hilliard. He flashed a glance of indescribable contempt at the supine broker; his eyes had lost some of their anxiety.

"Oh, the big crook!" he said boyishly. "The big crook!"

"Sh-h-h! Rufus!" Still, Hilliard, at heart, agreed with him to the letter.

The boy stood close to the masquerader.

"I'm sorry, Hilliard . . . it came at four this afternoon . . . we'd been hunting for you ever since . . ."

Hilliard wasn't interested.

"I'll wait until—"

Cullen signed to him peremptorily.

"Read it, I tell you! . . . It'll give you a slant on him!"

Hilliard peered over the foot of the bed; Harmon was still lying inert. The physician nodded sidewise.

"Nothing for you to do," he said grimly; and Hilliard, only partly aware of what he was doing, gave heed to the yellow blank.

The fourth telegram of the day was from Butte, Mont., addressed to Waring.

"Arrived here last night after delay in Chicago. This morning's papers contain information as follows: 'The faulted vein on XLNC property adjoining Silverbow claim number one has been located about twenty feet from Silverbow boundary. Indications are ore body running at least eighty per cent average and some places high as twenty. Also some zinc and silver and traces of manganese. This evidently extends well into Silverbow, where the greatest values are undoubtedly lying, and judging from records of old XLNC vein it's a tremendously big strike! Understand XLNC owners offering large sum, said to be well over half-million, for a controlling interest. I strongly advise all of you to get aboard for as much as Hilliard will let go. Am sending this from office of Cooley, Benjamin & Russell, who will not send separate report unless you want it. This is wonderful news and mine is sure winner, even if only a fraction as large as reported. Please show this message to Hilliard. Sigs. J. J. ARMSTRONG."

Hilliard sat down in the nearest chair. The lump in his throat was choking him; the moment was so big that his feelings were primitive; his expression of them were very simple. He only smiled; the meaningless, vacuous smile of an infant. That smile embraced the entire universe; it was indicative of a happiness so limitless, so perfect, that it was almost foolish. So Harmon, knowing from his own sources of the sudden strike, had rushed to Syracuse to pose as a man of honor! So Harmon had wanted to meet Waring—and find if Waring had yet heard the news, and if he hadn't, stop the investigation by apparent frankness and ready restitution. So Harmon had been eager to destroy the contract, to promise Hilliard anything and everything, to repay the money that was subscribed already—and then, as sole owner, to take an enormous profit for himself.

No . . . in the whole world—and least of all, Waring and Cullen—could have remotely fathomed the thoughts that were eddying in Hilliard's brain. They were not for his own aggrandizement; they were for the Cullens and Durants and for the others who need never know the acid of disillusionment. They were for the ideals he had struggled toward; they were for the friends who had stood by him. And there was one very especial and very manly thought for Jack Armstrong, who had been so courageous in his defeat, and so neutral in his behavior afterward, and who now had sent the generous news winging eastward, with the request that Hilliard should learn at once of his vindication.

And as Hilliard sat there, smiling out into the silent room, and struggling to visualize the extent of fortune which had so abruptly smitten him, there was a dry murmur from the bed where Harmon lay, and a resulting silence so pregnant with meaning that the smile faded, and Hilliard was on his feet, open-eyed with the present horror brought back to him.

The physician was rising slowly from cramped knees.

"It's all over," he said; paused, and added: "Apoplexy."

The only man in all America who could have testified to Hilliard's simulation had ceased to breathe.

CHAPTER XIV.

As Dr. Durant, having already given counsel this morning to seven patients, appeared at the door of the ante-room to signal to the eight, he was palpably astonished at the presence of the young man who sat next to the door. The Doctor was very human; the Doctor was very adaptable; but for thirty years he had managed to keep the social and professional phases of his life entirely apart, and at the very first glance he was aware that Hilliard hadn't come to consult with him professionally. Nevertheless, he raised his finger in the usual sign; Hilliard followed him to the inner room.

It was Hilliard's introduction to the Doctor's morning manner; and even in his own exalted spirit, he yielded slightly to the restraint in the atmosphere. The Doctor was bland, smiling, approachable, and yet not at all the same man as he appeared at the house on James street. He seemed detached from the hampering littleness of a household; there was no air of intentional repose about him. Hilliard, in spite of the importance of his mission, felt apologetic; he felt as though he were unwittingly robbing science of its most valuable asset, which is time.

"I know this isn't exactly the proper thing to do," he said, "but I'm leaving town in an hour or so . . . I thought you might spare me five minutes. Doctor, even if it is a little irregular. Can you?"

"What seems to be the trouble?" The Doctor's tone was a mild invitation to squander nothing on preliminaries.

"Mr. Cullen and I are running down to New York today . . . You've seen the morning papers, haven't you?"

"Yes," The Doctor nodded. "And Cullen telephoned me last night. Was Mr. . . . what was his name: Harmon? . . . was he a close friend of yours, Hilliard?"

"No; just a business associate . . . I didn't know him very well personally—socially, I should say. But it changes some of my plans . . . Mr. Cullen and I have to go to New York for a few days and after that we're going out to Montana together."

The Doctor tapped his desk thoughtfully.

"On account of this?"

"Partly, and partly not. The whole perspective's changed; we've got to get to work. Now, the last time I saw you . . . why, that was only yesterday!" He broke off, laughing at himself. "It seems so much longer than that! Why, you said then that if I ever needed any one of several different things, including seventy-five hundred dollars, to come to you. And you spoke as though you really meant it, Doctor . . . So I've come!"

The Doctor regarded him steadily for a moment, and resumed tapping the glass pad on his desk with a meditative forefinger.

"You're reconsidered, have you?"

"Not that so much—but we've had fresh information. Jack Armstrong's out there, indirectly representing Mr. Cullen, and we've heard from our own lawyers besides. So on the whole, I'm willing to let you in if you're willing to come, in spite of what I said at lunch yesterday."

The Doctor hesitated.

"Not that I doubt you at all," he said, "but when Cullen telephoned me last night, he said that you and he had raised all the money you needed in half an hour after you went out to look for it. You see, I have some channels of information myself! So I can't help wondering why you need this now." Nevertheless, he was hunting for his check-book.

"We don't need it—I simply insisted on keeping a place open for you, on the chance that you hadn't changed your mind."

"You're fully satisfied it's the right thing for me to do?"

"Yes, Doctor, I am."

The Doctor held his pen poised in the air. "I'm not sure I'm really entitled to it. Doesn't it really belong to some one who was on the spot last night?"

Hilliard's eyes twinkled.

"You're fond of talking about motives, Doctor. . . . You'd have let me have that money yesterday, wouldn't you?"

"Didn't I offer it to you?"

"Yes, sir; you did. But was it because you thought you'd make a big profit, or was it just to help me?"

"Why—"

"You see," said Hilliard cheerily, "if you're going to have these mercenary motives, you've got to let me have some, too. I've let friendship interfere with business twice in two days. And you're not the only one I held a place open for—Rufus and Jack are in it, too. It was my privilege to make that condition—and I did."

The Doctor scribbled rapidly.

"Then I'll keep my promise . . . But would you mind telling me what it is I'm buying?"

"Here's your receipt, Doctor," Hilliard laid a slip of paper on the desk; took up the check, and scrutinized it carefully. "What you've bought," he said, "is a twentieth interest in a new syndicate formed last night. We'll assume the stock control in New York, when we get there, by paying some more cash (and we've got more than we need already) and after that, we may possibly sell out, or we may go ahead and develop the mine ourselves. I don't know yet which; that's what Mr. Cullen and I are going West to decide. But you'll be protected anyhow; I'll see to that. And if you're in any hurry to get your money back—"

"How soon do you think it'll be?"

Hilliard laughed outright; a laugh of utter happiness. "Right now, if you say so."

The Doctor puzzled.

"You don't make it clear," he said.

"Then I will, Mr. Embree, down at the Trust and Deposit company, was one of the men who wanted to get in with us, and couldn't. He was just too late. But when I told him what I was saving out for you, he authorized me to make you an offer. I'm acting as his agent, that is, and I've got a check here, and if you want to endorse that receipt over to him, you can have this." He presented the banker's check; the Doctor stared; it was payable to himself, signed by Embree, and written for fifteen thousand dollars.

"Why, Hilliard!" he said, blankly. "Is that good business? For Embree? What's behind this?"

Hilliard fairly beamed his delight. "Well, if you want my advice, don't take it! I told him I'd have to explain it to you, and he agreed." He sat straighter, proudly. "Jack Armstrong sent another wire this morning—and the XLNC crowd, who own the property next to ours, know that I've had this contract for all the Silverbow stock, and they've made us a flat proposition of—four hundred—thousand dollars for the contract! And your twentieth share would be worth twenty thousand dollars if we took it! But we're not going to—because it's worth still more, and we know it. Lots more—twice as much—so—"

The Doctor's expression altered slightly; his chin sank a little, and he sighed, almost in regret.

"That hardly seems fair," he said slowly. "That hardly seems fair." He smiled fitfully, and sighed again. "For years and years," he said, "ever since I first began to practice, I've been working and waiting and hoping to reach the point where I could give up office work and do some research. . . . And here, in a few minutes, you dangle a two years' income in front of me—for no services of mine at all . . . for no labor on my part . . . not, as I'd hoped, the result of service, but—"

"I own a quarter of the mine myself," said Hilliard, with equal gravity. "And I'm not thinking how I got it, Doctor; I'm thinking how much good I can do with it . . . can't you look at it that way, too?"

The Doctor nodded presently.

Picts and Scots.

In his Dictionary of Phrase and Fable, the learned Rev. Dr. E. Cobham Brewer, writes upon Picts and Scots: "Pict is not the Latin plect (painted people). As Picts and Scots are always mentioned together, there is no reason why one name should be Latin and the other Gaelic. Scot is the Gaelic 'sgod' (a dweller in woods and forests), and Pict is the Gaelic plect (freebooters), the two being equivalent to foresters and freebooters."

Proof That Quality Counts.

Bischoff, the great Russian scientist and naturalist, once said "women are inferior to men because their brains are smaller and lighter." But when that man died his brain was weighed and found to be lighter than the average woman's. So it is not weight or size or sex, but quality, that makes superiority, as the presumptuous Bischoff proves.—Exchange.

First Missionaries to Islands.

One hundred years ago two men were sent from Torrington, Conn., to be the first missionaries to the Hawaiian Islands, then known as the Sandwich Islands. The event was commemorated at Torrington.

DEWS OF EVE

No More Gentle Than
"Cascarets" for the Liver, Bowels

It is just as needless as it is dangerous to take violent or nasty cathartics. Nature provides no shock absorbers for your liver and bowels against calomel, harsh pills, sickening oil and salts. Cascarets give quick relief without injury from Constipation, Bloating, Indigestion, Gases and Sick Headache. Cascarets work while you sleep, removing the toxins, poisons and sour, indigestible waste without griping or inconvenience. Cascarets regulate by strengthening the bowel muscles. They cost so little too.—Adv.

Made It Specific.

A little girl had been naughty, and her mother told her she must have no pudding for dinner. Later, the others ate a nice jam pudding, while the culprit received only bread and butter.

"Now, Jeanie," said her mother, at the end of the meal, "say grace." Jeanie obeyed. Closing her eyes and her hands, she said, with emphasis: "For what they have received may they be truly thankful."

There's no secret to success; anybody can achieve it who will work hard enough for it.

Why That Backache?

Why be miserable with a bad back? You can't be happy if every bad day brings lameness: sharp, shooting pains and a dull, nagging ache. Likely the cause is weak kidneys. You may have headaches and dizzy spells, too, with a weak, tired feeling. Don't delay. Try Doan's Kidney Pills. They have done wonders in thousands of such cases. Ask your neighbor!

An Iowa Case

Mrs. Fred Combs, 204 First Ave., Red Oak, Ia., says: "I could hardly stand on my feet at times, my back was so sore and weak. Sharp, knife-like pains would shoot through my kidneys. Hearing, so many speak highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, I bought a box and after taking them a few days my back felt stronger and I was better in every way."

Prayed for Cure

Finds it After 10 Years
Food Would Sour and Boil —Teeth Like Chalk

Mr. Herbert M. Gessner writes from his home in Berlin, N. H.:

I had stomach trouble over ten years; kept getting worse. I tried everything for relief but it came back worse than ever. Last fall I got awfully bad; could only eat light loaf bread and tea. In January I got so bad that what I would eat would sour and boil; my teeth would be like chalk. I suffered terribly. I prayed every day for something to cure me. One day I read about EATONIC and told my wife to get me a box at the drug store as I was going to work at 4 p. m. I took one-third of it and began to feel relief; when it was three-fourths gone, I felt fine and when it was used up I had no pains. Wife got me another box but I have felt the pain but twice. I used five tablets out of the new box and I have no more stomach trouble. Now I write to tell you how thankful I am that I heard of EATONIC. I feel like a new man; I eat what I like, drink plenty of water, and it never hurts me at all."

SIX MONTHS I COULD NOT WORK

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Me Strong and Able to Work—I Recommend It To All My Friends.

Bayonne, N. J.—“I had pains in back and legs so that I could not stand caused by female trouble. I felt so tired all the time, had bad headaches, and for six months I could not work. I was treated by a physician and took other remedies but got no relief. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has helped me very much. I am well and strong and now able to do my work. I cannot thank you enough and I recommend your medicine to my friends who are sick.”—Mrs. SUSIE SACATANSKY, 25 East 17th St., Bayonne, N. J.

It must be admitted by every fair-minded, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for over forty years, and today hold a record for such wonderful success as does Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, without possessing great virtue and actual worth. Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.

WOMEN, PREPARE!

Thousands of women have overcome their sufferings and have been cured of woman's ills by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This temperance medicine, though started half a century ago, sells most widely today. It can now be had in tablet form as well as liquid, and every woman who suffers from backache, headache, nervousness, should take this “Prescription” of Dr. Pierce's. It is prepared from nature's roots and herbs, and does not contain a particle of alcohol or any narcotic. It's not a secret prescription, for its ingredients are printed on wrapper. Tablets 60 cents at druggists.

Write confidentially about your case or send 10 cents for trial package of “Favorite Prescription Tablets” to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

Savanna, Ill.—“During my second expectant period I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a tonic. My health was perfect all the time up to the eighth month, when I met with a serious accident, a step gave way and I fell. I kept right on taking the ‘Prescription’ and am sure that this tonic prevented serious consequences. It was with my doctor's approval that I kept right on taking it. I had no fever or any after troubles. I feel most grateful for what this medicine did for me at that time, and am always pleased to recommend it.”—Mrs. Jennie Correll, 600 Bowen St.

Rockford, Ill.—“To any one desiring a mild and safe laxative I never fail to speak a good word for Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I put this remedy above all others for constipation and sick headaches.”—Mrs. Carrie La Pier, 121 Kilburn Ave.

A Well-Arranged Garden—By Providing Supports for Certain Crops Almost Twice the Number of Plants Can Be Grown on a Given Area.

VALUABLE HINTS HELP IN GARDEN

Labor Saving Facilities May Be Provided Without Much Additional Expense.

SUPPORTS HELP SOME CROPS

Certain Plants Do Better and Give Larger Yield If Furnished Something to Climb Upon—Some May Be Trained to Fence.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Where the garden is handled in an intensive manner, there are a number of facilities that may be provided without much extra cost, but which reduce the work of caring for the crops.

For instance, by providing supports for certain crops about double the number of plants can be grown on a given area, it is pointed out by specialists of the United States department of agriculture.

Certain varieties of early peas do not necessarily have to be provided with brush or any kind of support to climb upon, but they will do better and yield more if given support. With the later peas of the telephone or tall-growing variety, it is essential that they be given something to climb upon. Brush, if brush can be procured for this purpose, should be on hand and ready for use when the peas are planted.

Substitutes for Brush.

As a rule, brush cannot be secured in town, so it will be necessary to use some other form of support. Wire poultry netting 18 to 24 inches in width probably is the most desirable support that can be procured, but it is expensive, and a very satisfactory support can be made of cheap twine and a few stakes to string it on. In the case of one of the boys' club gardens, the boys did not have the money to buy netting, so they went to a place where refuse from the city was dumped and secured a number of broom handles and enough discarded bale wire to form a very satisfactory trellis upon which the peas were trained.

Tomatoes trained to a single stem and tied to stakes not only ripen their fruits earlier than those left upon the ground, but the fruits themselves are of better flavor; and, because they are held off the ground, they are cleaner and more convenient for gathering. By pruning and tying to stakes a much larger number of plants can be placed on a given area. Also plants, such as lettuce, early cabbage, radishes and beans, can be grown in the spaces between the tomato plants.

Many people prefer the bush type of Lima beans to the pole varieties, because no poles are required for the bush kinds. It has been found, however, that under most circumstances the pole Lima beans are preferable, because they can be trained on strings or wires attached to a fence, or, in case the fence is of wire, the beans can be trained on the fence itself. By the use of poles or a trellis of strings or wire the beans are carried up off the ground and occupy less space than do those of the bush varieties. The same is true of a number of garden crops.

Vine Crops on Fences.

If the garden is small and there is not room to grow the vine crops on the ground, they may be trained to the south side of a fence or even upon the side of a building, so that they really occupy very little of the actual garden space. Where it is desired to have some kind of a screen or shade over the back porch, there is nothing better than pole Lima beans, as they form a perfect screen that will last throughout the summer and at the same time give a supply of fresh beans for the table. A little study of the habits of the various crops will enable one to so arrange the garden as to get the maximum production without sacrificing quality or convenience in its cultivation.

By proper arrangement of rows and he grouping together of crops of similar nature, the work of caring for the garden is greatly reduced. For instance, all such crops as carrots, parsnips, salsify, onions, beets and turnips that require very little space between the rows should be given another place and those that cast considerable shade should be placed at the north side of the garden, where they will not shade the small crops.

Making Watering Easy.

Another special facility for the garden consists of a line of perforated pipe that may be attached to the hose and used to irrigate the crops. Where the land is nearly level, watering can be done very conveniently by discharging the hose into small furrows alongside rows and irrigating the crops by the flooding or furrow system. Wherever the land is steep or uneven, the line of perforated pipe will distribute the water to better advantage. This can be used where a water supply is available, and it is doubtful if it would pay where special pumping arrangements are necessary in order to provide the water. In sections where irrigation must be depended upon entirely for growing crops, special arrangements for getting water upon the garden must be made. Last year a great many farmers of the irrigated sections provided special facilities for watering their gardens.

SELL DIRECT TO CONSUMERS

Good Possibilities Offered to Farmer Having Farm Produce to Dispose Of.

Making a personal canvass among city persons and soliciting their trade offers good possibilities for one having farm produce to sell to obtain regular customers. Success will depend largely on the personality of the person making the canvass, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. It may be necessary, also, to solicit a large number of families in order to obtain a few customers.

Various other methods of obtaining customers have been tried. Whatever the method used, it usually requires painstaking work and considerable effort to get a number of reliable customers.

Consumers often have difficulty in getting in touch with reliable producers. As many farmers will not market direct, it is necessary to seek producers in localities without a good market for farm produce.

RATION FOR LITTLE CALVES

Three Parts Oats, One Part Corn and One of Oil Meal Is Excellent for Youngsters.

An excellent grain ration for little calves is three parts of oats, one part of corn and one part of oil meal. Keep the grain fresh. Do not spill milk in it and have a sour manger. Let the calves have free access to fresh and clean water, and also to salt. The common idea that calves will drink too much water is a mistake. During the first four months calves should not, however, eat too much grain.

POULTRY NOTES

Cleanliness is an enemy of disease.

Feed fowls well but better have them a little hungry than overfed.

Charred corn occasionally makes a good feed, especially in cold weather.

The hen that cackles loudest and longest doesn't always lay the most eggs.

Poultry soon become accustomed to regular hours of feeding. Don't disappoint them.

Pullets and cockerels should be at least nine months old before they are used for breeding purposes.

One objection to using very much sloppy food is that it often leads to filth and unsanitary conditions.

While ducks require plenty of water in the daytime, they should be provided with dry quarters at night. No other fowls are more quickly injured by dampness.

COOKIES and SMALL CAKES

From the NEW ROYAL COOK BOOK

WHEN the children romp in hungry as young bears, here are some wholesome, economical delights that will not only be received with glee, but will satisfy the most ravenous appetite in a most wholesome manner.

Cookies

1/2 cup shortening
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup milk
2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon grated nutmeg
1 teaspoon vanilla extract or grated rind of 1 lemon
4 cups flour
3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder

Cream shortening and sugar together; add milk to beaten eggs and beat again; add slowly to creamed shortening and sugar; add nutmeg and flavoring; add 2 cups flour sifted with baking powder; add enough more flour to make stiff dough. Roll out very thin on floured board; cut with cookie cutter, sprinkle with sugar, or put a raisin or a piece of English walnut in the center of each. Bake about 12 minutes in hot oven.

Cocoa Drop Cakes

4 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cups flour
3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1/2 cup cocoa
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Cream shortening; add sugar and well-beaten egg; beat well and add milk slowly; sift flour, baking powder, salt and cocoa into mixture; stir until smooth, add vanilla. Put one tablespoon of batter into each greased muffin tin and bake in moderate oven about 20 minutes. Cover with boiled icing.

Orange Cakes

4 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup milk
1 egg
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon orange extract
grated rind of 1 orange

Cream shortening; add sugar slowly, beating well; add milk a little at a time; then add well-beaten egg; sift flour, baking powder and salt together and add to mixture; add flavoring and grated orange rind; mix well. Bake in greased shallow tin, or individual cake tins, in hot oven 15 to 20 minutes. When cool cover with orange icing.

MUSIC OF ANCIENT GREECE TEACHER SHORT OF SUPPLIES NOTHING TO DO BUT WORK!

Bands That Marched to War With the Soldiers Played on Flutes, Pipes and Harps.

Poetry in ancient Greece was accompanied by the cithara and the lyre, while the flute was played by both men and women in furnishing martial music to the soldiers in time of war. Musical bands marched to war with the soldiers and played on flutes, pipes and harps.

The lyre and the harp were preferred by the Greeks for private use, for it was thought they did not prevent one from remaining master of himself, while the flute, pipe or clarinet put the man beside himself and obscured reason. There were extensive choirs whose music was distinctly connected with the religious life of the people. These choirs were composed of both men and women and were employed for public and private religious festivals.

The choirs celebrated victories in war, deaths, holy days, births and marriages. Alkman, who lived as early as 650 B. C., wrote a choir song for girls which was a dramatic part song.

Practical Persons.

“You never hear of anybody addressing a poem to his caddy.”

“No.”

“Still there must be bonds of sympathy and gratitude between many golf players and their faithful caddies.”

“No doubt; but the average golf player has neither the time nor the ability to write poetry, and the average caddy would rather be presented with a dollar than a bound volume of eulogies.”—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Tommy's Excuse Rather a Poor One, but He Was in a Mighty Tight Corner.

The village schoolmaster had done very well with his war saving association. The scholars brought in their pennies regularly every week; some even had as much as a shilling to subscribe.

One Monday morning Mrs. Oates gave her son Tommy the sum of three pence to pay in. On his return for dinner the good lady asked to see his card.

“Look here, Tommy,” she said sternly, “there's only twopence entered here! How is that?”

Tommy grew pale as he saw that his sin had found him out. But the taffee in the village shop had been so tempting. However, he did his best.

“Yes, mother,” he stammered, “that's all the ink the teacher had.”—London Answers.

The Largest Animal.

Most boys have seen pictures of the huge lizard which roamed the earth millions of years ago, and is supposed to be the largest animal which ever lived. Searchers in Utah have discovered some bones of an animal which was twice the size of this great prehistoric animal. A hole 600 feet long and 80 feet deep had been dug when some one claimed the land. The government thereupon created a National Dinosaur Monument, comprising the locality, which will be protected until the investigations are finished. The work is being directed by the Carnegie Institute, which discovered and assembled the skeleton of the familiar dinosaur.—Boys' Life for March.

A fast young man is seldom able to keep up with his running expenses.

When One Thinks of It, It Is Rather a Foolish Way to Spend One's Lifetime.

The most common complaint we hear from everybody we know is that they can't keep up with all there is to be done. We make the same complaint. Like you all, we undertake to do seventeen thousand things more than the hours of the day will permit us to do.

It is an awful mistake. To be driven like a galley slave is the rule we have made for our lives. And, oh, to quit it all, or to quit all but the things we would like to do and are worth while!

To never catch up, to never know what it is not to be tired—it is a foolish way to spend a lifetime. This one and only little lifetime that is ours.

And what are we to do about it? Cut loose and run away; we guess it is the only thing to do.—Los Angeles Times.

Reckless Experiment.

“Friend,” said Cactus Joe to the man who had just alighted from the bus, “could you tell us what a soviet is?”

“What do you want to know for?” “Crimson Gulch has been getting so orderly and subdued that some of our most prominent citizens are talking about leaving. We need some excitement and we wouldn't mind a little trouble if it didn't last too long. From what I can hear a soviet, if it was managed right, would about fill the bill.”

LEVI DOTY PETITIONS COUNTY BOARD TO AMEND PAROLE LAW

The past week the County Board of Supervisors received an interesting petition from Levi Doty of Frankfort asking this body to use their influence to bring about a change in the present parole law. Mr. Doty sets forth in his petition that it takes 12 men as a jury to convict a man, but it only takes three men to parole a criminal and often times a parole is granted without the board even knowing the true merits of the case. Mr. Doty believes that all criminals when paroled should be paroled to the county from which they came. Another point brought out in the petition is that the present parole law helps to make criminals instead of checking them. For instance a man steals say $50,000 and if he serves one or two years and then paroled he has had an opportunity to make enough money to last him a life time. Mr. Doty sets forth other defects of the present law and shows how it could be changed so as to be more effective.

In his petition Mr. Doty relates an incident which took place in the early days to show how justice was then meted out to criminals.

A farmer was on his way to Chicago with a load of corn and stopped at Blue Island to rest. There he met a lame man who asked him for a ride to Chicago. As there was no room on the seat beside the driver the lame man had to ride on the load of corn. As the farmer was passing thru a wooded part of highway the lame man pulled out a revolver and shot the farmer in the back of the head killing him instantly. The body was then buried in some underbrush, and the team and grain was disposed of in the city. The murder leaked out and the murderer was caught. After being given a trial he was found guilty and sentenced to be hung. The hanging took place about 120 miles from the scene of the murder. The execution took place on the open prairie and was witnessed by about a thousand persons. This incident is said to have taken place in 1886.
